PEER SUPPORT SERVICES

I. Definition of Services:
Peer Support Services are provided by a trained Peer or Family-Peer Specialist in a variety of home and community based settings. Peer services are offered to clients who have a diagnosis of mental illness and or substance use disorder to enable them to live in their community, in a setting appropriate to their individual support requirements and preferences. The Peer Support service is an individualized, recovery-focused service that allows individuals the opportunity to learn to manage their own recovery and advocacy process. Interventions of peer specialist staff serve to enhance the development of natural supports, coping skills, and other skills necessary to function as independently as possible in the community. Peer Specialist interventions may also provide services to help a person’s re-entry into the community after a hospitalization or residential treatment.

Peer Support Services focus on personal safety, confidence, growth, goal achievement, connection to the community, boundary setting, planning, self-advocacy, personal fulfillment, development of natural supports and effective communication skills. Services emphasize acquiring, developing and expanding rehabilitation skills necessary for a person to move forward in their recovery.

Examples of Peer Support interventions include:

- Self Help: developing a person’s ability to make informed, independent choices; helping the person develop a network of contacts for information and support with the help of the experienced Peer Specialist.
- Community Education: Peer Specialists work with community providers and other natural support entities to teach them about recovery, mental illness, and substance use disorders and help create an environment of acceptance and support. Through education, Peer Specialists work to decrease the stigma and discrimination that surrounds mental illness and substance use disorders.
- Individual Advocacy: Peer Specialists discuss concerns the consumer may have about treatment or diagnosis with prescribers and other professional staff if the consumer requests this service. Peer specialists also help the consumer make appointments for medical, mental health and other human services. The most important role of the peer specialist, however, is to teach the consumer skills to enable them to effectively advocate for themselves.
- Pre-crisis support: Peer specialists work with the consumer to help them create and implement a personal crisis plan. They make appropriate referrals if a consumer may be escalating to a crisis.
- Education, Volunteering, Employment: Peer specialists help the consumer get information about returning to school, applying for volunteer positions, and job training. They also work with the consumer to teach them how to ask for reasonable accommodations.
Managing distressing symptoms: Peer specialists work with the consumer and treatment team to help the consumer identify effective strategies for managing distressing symptoms. This is done from an experiential basis, and is done in collaboration with other treatment interventions such as formal counseling, groups and medication.

II. Staff requirements

- Peer support must be delivered by persons who have the life experience of being diagnosed with a serious mental illness, substance use disorder or who have a family member who has been diagnosed with a serious mental illness, substance use disorder or serious emotional disorder. Peer and family peer specialists must currently be working on their recovery, stable and able to maintain employment. A peer specialist/family peer specialist must have a level of literacy to enable them to perform the administrative requirements of the job. This typically means having at least a high school diploma or GED, but lack of these credentials will not disqualify an individual from employment as long as they are able to perform the administrative duties of the job (i.e. documenting consumer contacts, reading and understanding literature relevant to the job).

- Peer/family peer specialists must have completed a recognized peer specialist training program and must have documentation of completion. At a minimum, the training program should focus on the following areas:
  - Principles of recovery, resiliency and empowerment
  - Cultural competency
  - Dealing with conflict
  - Goal setting and problem solving
  - Understanding psychosocial rehabilitation
  - Consumer rights and confidentiality
  - Professional boundaries in a peer support setting
  - Self-advocacy
  - Listening and responding skills
  - Telling their personal story in a way that helps consumers

- Peer/family peer specialists are supervised by a Qualified Health Professional as defined by federal guidelines.

III. Service Setting

- Peer/family peer services can be provided in any location. The majority of contacts should be face-to-face, however, some services may be provided over the telephone or through other electronic media as necessary to help the consumer achieve their rehabilitation goals. If e-mail is used, e-mails must be transmitted using encryption software.
